In brief, in 2015, we completed a total of 14 workshops, lectures, and seminars. Over 200 participants came from Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Thailand and the United States.

During the summer, we conducted three English Teacher Workshops, and one College Students Workshop with university students from Japan and Korea. A total of 55 students joined two Nursing Programs, with visits to Queen’s MC, Kapiolani MC for Women & Children, Kuakini MC, Pali Momi MC, Kaiser Permanente, Maluhia Hospital, Maunalani Nursing Center, Leahi Hospital, and Straub Clinic & Hospital. In these programs, we awarded two fellowships, 23 merit awards, eight tuition scholarships, and 3 grants for housing and board.

The American Studies Forum ran from August 5 to 12, with twelve participants from four countries including the United States. Seven UH-Manoa professors came to speak on a wide variety of topics of relevance to modern America, including historic preservation.

The 8th APC Leadership Luncheon Lecture

Mark Dunkerley, President and CEO of Hawaiian Airlines, delivered the address at the 8th APC Leadership Luncheon Lecture on November 20, 2015. The event, held at the Willows Restaurant, had about 30 people in attendance.

Mr. Dunkerley talked about his history at Hawaiian Airlines, and the business and interpersonal lessons he has learned during that time. Notably, he discussed how the narrow range of elements that distinguish one airline from another still make a large difference in the culture and perception of the companies.

For example, the pride, commitment and confidence of employees, though only a detail of the overall picture, make a big difference in how customers and other profes-tion (William Chapman), American intellectual property laws (Deborah Halbert), as well as ethics, finance, politics, higher education, globalization, and racial disparity.

The Language & Culture Seminar, held on October 31, and November 7 and 14, focused on teaching participants about the Korean, Chinese, and Japanese languages. Dr. Sang Yee Cheon’s talk was on Korean culture and social customs, and participants were delighted to learn some Korean expressions for greeting, asking for directions, and requesting information, among others. Dr. Cynthia Ning gave an enjoyable lecture where she introduced attendees to Chinese greetings and polite language through edited footage of native speakers, and gave attendees a chance to use an abacus. Similarly, Dr. Mitsue Tabata-Sandom’s session on Japanese gave participants a grasp of some essential elements of Japanese, as well as providing fun, hands-on activities.

On November 20, the 8th APC Leadership Luncheon Lecture featured Mark Dunkerley, President and CEO of Hawaiian Airlines, who delivered a talk that perfectly matched the goals of APC in highlighting the importance of capable and well-informed leaders in the Asia-Pacific arena. He linked quality of service with the pride and commitment employees feel toward their work, an important consideration for any business leader.

Finally, CAPE’s board of directors and advisory council met for a year-end dinner on December 16, 2015. Our leaders and faithful friends looked back on 35 years of accomplishments, including surpassing 11,000 participants in our various programs.

Upcoming events in 2016 include the 30th Annual “Asia Today” Series and the 36th Annual Forum – Global Studies (formerly the American Studies Forum). “Asia Today” will be held on May 7, 14, and 21, and feature language diversity and change in the modern Pacific Islands; Singapore’s trade of democracy for stability and development; and Indonesia’s political handling of its incredibly diverse and numerous population. The Annual Forum, planned for August 3 to 10, will focus on global health issues, agriculture and food, religion and violence, security and global crime, climate change, urbanization, demographics, and migration.

On a personal level, CAPE had several friends visit in the last year. Most notable was Dr. Nahm-Sheik Park, former President of the International Graduate School of English, a close partner of CAPE, and the alma mater of many of our English teacher workshop participants. Dr. Park gave a talk at the 2015 CAPE Summer Workshops for Teachers of English during his visit which the participants appreciated.

We are also proud to have presented a Special Service Award to Dr. Richard Day at the CAPE 2015 Summer Aloha Luncheon in August, in recognition of his continued service and contributions to CAPE since the inception of the teachers’ workshops in 1982. A similar award was presented to Dr. Richard Schmidt, who has also worked in our support since 1982, at the CAPE 30th anniversary celebration.

Another happy visit to the CAPE office occurred in December by Mrs. Mayumi Tabuchi, a CAPE alumna from Kyoto, Japan who has done so much to promote our programs at her regional high schools.

Our last piece of news is not so happy. A long-time friend and supporter of CAPE, the Honorable Man Sup Lee, passed away on December 14 in Seoul. Speaker Lee lent his support to CAPE for three decades, attending various CAPE dinners and fundraisers held in Seoul, always with his wit and good humor at hand. He spoke at the Leadership Lecture sponsored by CAPE and APC in 2007, and he was a great personal friend. He will be missed.

CAPE wrapped up a busy and eventful calendar in 2015, and continues to look forward to another productive year. Mahalo to all.

CAPE hosted its annual Language and Culture Seminar on three consecutive Saturdays of October 31, November 7 and November 14, 2015. The seminar this time highlighted the languages and cultures of China, Japan, and Korea.

Dr. Sang Yee Cheon kicked off the first of the seminars by illustrating the important role of language in Korean culture and society. Specifically, she taught the audience useful expressions including greetings, introductions, and directions. Dr. Cheon also spent some time covering information on Korea, such as traditional clothing, K-drama, and the writing system.

The following week, Dr. Cynthia Ning taught Mandarin Chinese with particular attention to tone, an important feature of the language in distinguishing the meanings of words. Dr. Ning kept the audience highly engaged with a section on the abacus, as well as a brief introduction to written Chinese characters. This was followed by video clips on Islam in China, which allowed participants to deepen their cultural understanding of China.

The series wrapped up with an introduction of a variety of language and cultural aspects of Japan by Dr. Mitsue Tabata-Sandom. She provided ample time for language practice, and also incorporated some learning activities, such as a chopsticks game and how to use a furoshiki. The audience enjoyed the interactive environment, and found the seminar to be extremely helpful in learning basic language.

CAPE thanks these wonderful speakers, all faculty at the University of Hawaii. We welcome anyone interested to join us again at this year’s Seminar, now slated for November, and also at the “Asia Today” Series, to be held in May. Please visit www.cape.edu for more information.
35th Annual American Studies Forum
(Aug 5-12, 2015)

The American Studies Forum ran in August, with twelve participants from Japan, Korea, US, and Taiwan. They attended lectures by seven speakers from UH, on topics relevant to modern America.

Dr. Deane Neubauer, a long-time guest speaker at this Forum, spoke on the social implication of the changes occurring in American higher education, as well as the changes taking place in American electoral politics. Dr. Colin Moore also delivered two talks on the topic of American politics, one in which he examined the effects of big money on elections, and a second one about the connected topic of inequality and the future of democracy in this country.

The remaining speakers moved away from the political and addressed a variety of social and cultural issues.

Dr. Craig Howes looked at how lies, ethics, and interview techniques may affect the quality of biographical and autobiographical works.

Dr. William Chapman discussed historic preservation trends in the U.S., while Dr. Manfred Steger spoke about the supposed dominance of American pop culture all over the world; Dr. Debora Halbert delivered a talk on a related subject, the matter of how American intellectual property laws affect scholarship and the arts all over the world.

Finally, Dr. Jack Taylor provided a darker note with his talk about the side effects of living under oppression, illustrated with the story of Black Americans and their difficult history from slavery to Jim Crow.

This was the last American Studies Forum; starting in August, 2016, CAPE will change the focus of this conference to Global Studies, in order to address a wider scope of issues, and reflecting a more international theme.

111th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English
(Aug 4-13, 2015)

The first of three workshops for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English ran for one week in August, 2015. The 11 independent participants were teachers from Japan, Korea, and Thailand. They had lectures from UH faculty on professional and pedagogical topics. A new offering this summer was Dr. Nahm-Sheik Park’s talk, “Socratic Seminar on E(n)glish L(anguage) T(eaching) in Korea.” Dr. Park is the former president of the International Graduate School of English in Korea, and we were honored to have him speaking to our program participants last summer. Another notable talk was delivered by Dr. Richard Schmidt, “Fifty (probably) true and (possibly) useful findings from SLA Research.” We thank these speakers as well as Dr. Christina Higgins, Dr. Sandra McKay, Dr. Richard Day, and Dr. Graham Crookes for their contributions.

112th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

They attended culture classes led by Ms. Anita Bruce and a special session by Mr. Myron Monte, as well as lectures by UH faculty, including Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Richard Day, Dr. Elizabeth Gilliland, Mr. Kenton Harsch, Dr. Christina Higgins, and Dr. Richard Schmidt. Dr. Nahm-Sheik Park also delivered a talk. As with all our month-long teachers’ workshops, the Jeonbuk group visited schools during their stay. their time was spent in English and American culture classes led by Ms. Anita Bruce, Mr. Mark McGrath, and Mr. Christopher Hunter, but they also heard special lectures pertaining to their future profession. Dr. Pat Nishimoto and Dr. Deane Neubauer spoke about leadership in nursing; Dr. Verna Hanashiro discussed the differing roles of RNs, CNSs, and Nurse Practitioners, and Dr. John Casken spoke about nursing issues in Hawaii and the U.S.

Finally, and always to the delight of the participants, participants visited several medical facilities in Hawaii. We owe thanks to Ms. Gayle Oshima at Kuakini Medical Center; Ms. Laurene A. Chun at Kaiser Permanente; Ms. Sherri Sommer-Candelario at Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children; Ms. Brigitte McKale at Pali Momi Medical Center; Ms. Sarah Kim at Straub Clinic & Hospital; Ms. Makana McClellan at Queen’s Medical Center; Ms. Lydia Chock at Maluhia Hospital; and Ms. Sai Chantavy and Dr. Cecile Morris at Maunalani Nursing & Rehab Center. Without their support and cooperation, this program would not have met with such great success.

68th International Program for College Nursing Students
(June 22-July 12, 2015)

Twenty nursing students from Hallym University in Korea came for a three-week program in June and July, 2015, chaperoned by Dr. Shin-Jeong Kim. They, too, had special lectures, delivered by Dr. Verna Hanashiro, Dr. Deane Neubauer, and Dr. Pat Nishimoto, as well as English and American culture classes led by Mrs. Aileen Moriwake and Mr. Christopher Hunter. They visited four medical facilities, hosted by Ms. Lydia Chock at Leahi Hospital and Maluhia Hospital, by Ms. Sai Chantavy and Dr. Cecile Morris at Maunalani Nursing & Rehab Center, and by Ms. Makana McClellan at Queen’s Medical Center.

71st International Program for College Students
(Aug 3-29, 2015)

CAPE hosted a single program for college students in August, 2015, consisting of ten independent college students from Japan and Korea. They came from Chungang University, Matsuyama Shinenome College, and Honam University. Their morning English classes were led by Mr. Mark McGrath, and Mrs. Aileen Moriwake taught the American and Hawaiian culture section. Students spent the afternoons doing fieldwork visiting assigned locations such as the State Capitol, the Iolani Palace, the Bishop Museum, and Honolulu Zoo. They used these trips to interact with local people, asking questions and discovering the beauties of Hawaii.

DIFFERENT PERSPECTIVES

The following was written by Ms. Keun-Hee Yang, a participant in the 117th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English (January 27 - February 18, 2016)

I went to University Lab School to observe classes. I could choose to observe between high school and middle school classes. I went to see high school classes today. The first class was English for 11th grade. At the beginning of almost every class, students wrote journals about topics the teacher suggested for 5 minutes. Some students were working hard on their journals while a few were just spending time scribbling words. I asked the teacher about it and she said, “All students have to submit their journals online, so if they don’t write much, it would be their homework.” Afterwards they were doing dictation, and it surprised me. In Korea, first graders do many dictations, but at the high school level, almost no one does it. I thought dictation was a good idea to improve students’ literacy.

The next class was art. Students were divided into 3 classes: ceramic, sculpture, and painting. When it was time to start class, the teacher didn’t say much. Students just started doing their project, while teachers walked around, and helped the students if they needed it. Students were on their own. Teachers in Korea have too much control over students; we treat students as if they are toddlers. We teach them from A to Z, and are busy checking if they are following us.

Next class was math. It was even more surprising. There was a lot of freedom. Students were eating snacks and one student was walking around to charge her cell phone. When the math teacher was explaining the concept, some students seemed distracted doing something else. But when the teacher asked them to solve questions, almost everyone started doing it. They freely asked questions to the teacher and to their friends.

What I saw today gave me a different perspective on education. Some students have a hard time focusing in class, but if we give them time and space, they will come back. Also, we should put more responsibilities on students. In Korea, if students do not focus, we tend to think that it’s the teacher’s fault. But that is not always the case. Students have to take responsibility for their own behavior. At the same time teachers should accept that students can stand on their own feet. Our job is not forcing them go on the right track, rather we have to guide them to choosing the right track.
A Special Service Award was presented to Dr. Richard Day at the 2015 CAPE Summer Aloha Luncheon held in August in recognition of his continued service and contributions to CAPE since its inaugural Workshop for Teachers of English in 1982. A similar award was presented to Dr. Richard Schmidt on the occasion of CAPE’s 30th anniversary celebration. Dr. Day and Dr. Schmidt are the only two faculty members who have participated in the CAPE Workshop for Teachers of English from beginning to present. We are especially appreciative of their generous contributions made to English teachers education for over three decades. Mahalo nui loa to Dr. Day and Dr. Schmidt.

Mrs. Mayumi Tabuchi, alumni contact for the Kyoto, Japan, area, made a visit to the CAPE Office on December 20, 2015. As an alumni contact, she has made immense contributions to the promotion of CAPE programs in Japan, and has arranged for high school student groups to participate for many years. Especially interesting is the fact that all of her children participated in our programs, and have continued to show interest. Now they are leading successful careers in their own respective professions. Thanks are due to Mrs. Tabuchi for all she has done for CAPE. It was great to meet her and husband Dr. Tabuchi at the CAPE office.

Dr. Nahm-Sheik Park served as a speaker for the 2015 CAPE Summer Workshops for Teachers of English during his visit to Hawaii. His talk entitled “Socratic Seminar on E(nglish) L(anguage) T(eaching) in Korea” was well-received by participants from Japan, Korea and Thailand. Dr. Park, emeritus professor of English at Seoul National University, stepped down from his presidency of International Graduate School of English (IGSE) in the fall of 2014 after serving two terms. He is a long-time supporter of CAPE – since its inception in 1980. Mahalo for all his contributions to CAPE for over three decades!

Former ROK National Assembly Speaker Man Sup Lee passed away on Monday, December 14, 2015 at Severance Hospital in Seoul at the age of 83. We are saddened by the passing of the Honorable Man Sup Lee. Speaker Lee has been a supporter of CAPE for the past three decades, faithfully attending annual CAPE Friends/Korea lunches/dinners held in Seoul in an effort to raise CAPE’s annual funds. At our annual lunches/dinners, his wit and humor made everyone in attendance break into laughter filling the room with jovial smiles and happiness.

Speaker Lee was a special speaker at the Leadership Luncheon Lecture sponsored by CAPE and APC in September of 2007. He talked about Korea and Korean politics, as well as providing some wisdom on how to lead a happy and long married life. All in attendance not only enjoyed but were also inspired by his talk.

A graduate of Yonsei University in Seoul, Korea, Speaker Lee worked as a reporter for the daily Dong-A Ilbo before entering politics in 1963. As an eight-term lawmaker, he served as speaker two times: in 1993 and again between 2000 and 2002. He was known for his advocacy of parliamentarism and will be remembered as the “great tree” of South Korean politics. He was respected by many politicians especially for his firmness, conviction and justice.

As a member of CAPE Friends/Korea, Speaker Lee made special efforts to help with the promotion of CAPE’s image and programs, establishing a wider contact at the educational level in Korea. His sheer contribution and selfless support will be long remembered. We are grateful for all his contributions in enhancing harmony of Asia-Pacific region. He will remain in the hearts of many CAPE family members. Most of all, his WIT and HUMOR will be much missed. May he rest in peace!
