Ms. Kathryn Matayoshi

Participants that joined the 9th APC Luncheon Lecture, Fall 2016

CAPE's sister organization Asia-Pacific College (APC) hosted the 9th Leadership Luncheon Lecture on November 29, 2016 at The Willows Restaurant. This year featured a talk by Hawaii State Department of Education Superintendent Kathryn Matayoshi on the topic "Leadership through Adversity."

Ms. Matayoshi shared her personal experiences and stories of challenges as an attorney, as well as with the Board of Water Supply, Hawaiian Electric Company, and the Department of Education, which helped give the audience an opportunity to reflect on characteristics, attitudes and strategies of leadership.

She spoke about how leaders should:

- Be comfortable living with ambiguity, especially in a world that is changing rapidly;
- Have a vision, but also be able to implement it;
- Have a sense of integrity in order to stand up to criticism;
- Make decisions that are practical and flexible – not making a decision is making a decision;
- Maintain a sense of optimism and recognize the small wins.

The mainstay of the summer offerings consisted of four separate Workshops for Teachers of English, of lengths varying from one week to one month, catering to sharpening the professional and language skills of current and future teachers of English at the secondary and elementary levels. All participants in these courses took part in a combination of intensive language-training classes and special lectures in applied linguistics given by experts from faculty in the Department of Second Language Studies at UH. In addition, these teachers and teacher-trainees visited local elementary, middle and high schools, where they observed classes and participated in cultural exchange activities.

Three students from Korea joined CAPE and APC's jointly offered Program for College Students. The students spent four weeks together studying English, American culture, and presentation skills in the morning classes, with afternoons, evenings and weekends exploring Oahu. Part of their course of studies includes field assignments that require them to speak to locals, asking questions and learning first-hand about life in the islands, to be reported back to class in presentations or written work.

A third set of programs are designed to give Korean nursing students a chance to improve their English skills while also getting a look at American healthcare services by visiting local facilities. During summer, CAPE hosted 52 students for these programs. The students also heard special lectures from faculty at the School of Nursing, and visited various healthcare facilities in Oahu, including the Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children, Kuakini Medical Center, Maluhia Hospital, Maunalani Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, Pali Momi Medical Center, Queen's Medical Center, and Straub Medical Center.

In an effort to support our students, CAPE awarded 2 fellowships, 11 merit awards, 5 tuition scholarships, and 4 grants for housing and board to defray the cost of expenses to participants. We thank our donors for making these gifts possible.

Several shorter programs also took place. The Annual Forum – Global Studies ran from August 3 to 11, with 11 participants from three countries including the U.S. Six UH-Manoa professors came to speak on a wide variety of topics of relevance to globalization, including global capital and financial crises (Deane Neubauer), climate change (Camilo Mora), as well as higher education, urbanization, food, religion, and global crime.

A workshop on eldercare also took place in August with eight nurses in attendance. They listened to a special lecture from Dr. Cullen Hayashida on long-term care trends and issues in U.S. and Hawaii, and visited facilities including the Care Center of Honolulu, Central Union Church Adult Day Care & Day Health Center, Island Nursing Home, Kahala Nui, Kuakini Medical Center, Oahu Care Facility, Palolo

On October 29, Dr. Chhany Sak-Humphry delivered one of her interesting and enjoyable presentations to show how she uses pictures, signs, and images to teach Cambodian to her students. On the same day, Dr. Paul Lavy introduced the history, architecture, and importance to Cambodian history of the famous Angkor Wat. Both talks were deemed “extremely interesting and informative” by the audience.

The following week, Dr. Leticia Pagkalinawan introduced the basics of the Filipino language, using games, songs and other activities to make for a very enjoyable hour. She was followed by Dr. Ricardo Trimillos talk on Filipino identity, and how they shape and “perform” it through festivals and religious observances.

Finally, on November 12, Dr. Wimal Dissanyake delivered a fine talk about the complex culture and nationhood of Sri Lanka. We thank these fine speakers for delivering such informative and interesting talks. CAPE welcomes all interested in learning more to join us again at “Asia Today” Series, to be held in May. Singing "ALA MOANA Beach"

The last four days I have gone through a tough schedule – four days of swimming in a row! I wasn't feeling well all morning, so I couldn't accept my classmates' suggestion to explore other places, like Honolulu Museum of Arts or Kualoa Ranch. I felt that if I kept pushing myself to do another activity, I would get sick. So I went directly to the hotel and took a break.

I couldn't fall asleep, so I laid on the bed, read a book, and played the guitarlele. When my roommate returned to the hotel, he made a great dinner for me. It was 'ramyeon' (instant noodle) that he bought from a Korean mart near our hotel. It was so great that I could say it was the best 'ramyeon' in my life. I really thanked him for his kindness and consideration.

I suggested that we go to the beach with my guitarlele. He willingly accepted my suggestion and headed to the Ala Moana Beach which is close enough to walk to. We were lying on the beach towel that we borrowed from our hotel. I really appreciate our hotel employees' kindness. Anyway, I started to sing some Korean songs. One of the songs I sang was "Ala Moana Beach" which is actually a Korean song called "Yeosu Bambada". I changed some of the lyrics into Ala Moana

Beach. My roommate was interested in that song and searched on the internet to find it. It was so funny because the original song is so famous that I thought he would've guessed that I changed it up a bit. After I told the truth, he was really surprised and we laughed together.

While I was singing, a lady came and sat near us, then laid on the beach. She didn't move until I finished singing five or six Korean songs. She said nothing and didn't even glance at us. But when she was leaving, I saw her looking at me and showing a delicate smile. I could discern that she was actually saying that she enjoyed listening to my songs. I enjoyed the night beach. When lying on the beach, the stars were inching along to Mauka, slowly pushing down clouds back to Makai.

IN MEMORIAM

Dr. Susie Kim

*T*wo collegial connections made it possible for me to know Dr. Susie Kim. One of these is Dr. Moim Kim, University of Hawaii/East-Center Fellowship alumnus (Class of 1965). The other is Dr. Linsu Kim (her husband), who applied for an East-West Center grant to study at the University of Hawaii when I was chair of the selection committee in Korea. These two links gifted me with a friendship with Susie Kim. Our connection began in the early 70's, but it wasn't until the late 1970's that we became friends, when the Kims returned to Korea upon completion of their doctoral degrees. Dr. Linsu Kim's degree from Indiana University was in management, and Dr. Susie Kim's was from Boston University in nursing. She was, in fact, the first Korean national to earn a Ph.D. in Nursing. While her husband served as a professor of management at Korea University, Dr. Susie Kim taught at Ewha Women's University, later becoming Dean of the College of Nursing.

In 1981, The Center for Asia-Pacific Exchange held its inaugural program of the Annual American Studies Forum; this was followed by the Workshop for Teachers of English in the winter of 1982. The first nursing-related programs, hospice and nursing administration, were launched in the mid 1980's with the blessing of three persons – Dr. Moim Kim, Dr. Susie Kim and Dr. Euisook Kim. The hospice program was especially made possible by the virtue of Dr. Susie Kim's passion and sweat. Dr. Kim's participation proved to be an inspiration for many others. She really touched other nurses, teachers, and students with her devotion to her work and the warm-heartedness that brightened everyone around her. The Hospice Program lasted for over 10 years, and helped to produce hundreds of hospice nurses in Korea. Dr. Kim's ideas of what hospice service is and how it should be implemented contributed to making the hospice program as it exists today. Her passion and enthusiasm continues to warm the hearts of many Koreans struggling with end-of-life issues for themselves or their loved ones.

When the program to teach English and nursing theory to Korean nursing students was launched in the early 1980's, again two universities – Ewha Women's University and Yonsei University - played pivotal roles, and students from these two schools started joining CAPE's programs for nursing students. Dr. Susie Kim herself accompanied the first student group and ensured that every student had a good experience. What surprised me most was that she, too, attended the English classes and the cultural studies classes every morning without missing even one hour. She participated in all the sessions along with her students. Without a doubt, Dr. Kim's English, learned and polished during her tenure as a doctoral student at Boston University, was superb. Indeed, she spoke nearly flawless English, as far as I could tell. Regardless, I was in awe that she remained in the classes from beginning to end. It's a common practice for chaperoning professors to observe one or two classes in the beginning, and perhaps attend the special lectures, but then they often spend their time as they please, perhaps doing research in the library. For Dr. Kim, though, I wish I could find an appropriate adjective to describe her attitude. Perhaps the word is 'humility', but it does not really suffice. A woman of empathy and love? A model for nurses? Caring, sharing, touching? Would it be right to say that she was a woman who touched our hearts and continues to do so, as ever?

Dr. Susie Kim is a long-time member of CAPE Friends, and she has made contributions to CAPE for over 30 years. She helped CAPE out of sheer generosity, not missing a year even when she was under adverse circumstances. Her donations made me think of her pure heart, her warm smile, and her kind love. I vividly recall the time when she presented me with an envelope, saying, "Please accept this as a token of my continued aloha and support," when she was visiting Korea during her sojourn as Dean of Nursing School in Malawi, and I happened to be there at the same time. Those words moved my heart. I should have been the one offering

Washington Middle School

*T*oday was the first day of my school visit to Washington Middle School. I was really excited to meet local students and teachers, but a little worried about how I could give a good first impression. The school is not far from our hotel, so I can easily find where the school is. We arrived there earlier than expected, but the principal was already there waiting us. He was very kind and tried to inform us of every detail about the school system. They have very tight schedule, but flexible, and shorter break and lunch time. It seemed very

The following was written by Ms. Sung-Eun Kim, a participant in the 121st Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English (January 8 – February 4, 2017) tough to keep up with that schedule everyday, but I assume they are already used to it. Teachers and students have to eat very fast, not having much time to chat and play on the ground, which is quite different from Korea. However, they finish earlier, around 1:40~2:30 pm. The most interesting thing is that students are required to receive a pass from the teacher to go to the restroom during class time. Also, students should leave the school by 2:50 pm, except ones who take after school classes or do something being monitored by a teacher. There are a lot of differences between my school and this school. Teachers take on many roles other than teaching, and I can feel that they are proud of their job. I observed three classes, and all were learner-centered and project-based, which are hot issues and our goals in Korea. Most of the students seem to be very accustomed to this kind of learning method. I think I can acquire many things from here and I'm looking forward to the next visit. I am very lucky to be assigned this nice, friendly, and organized school.

her a donation for her struggling program in Malawi! That was the last time I saw her smiling face. I wish I could see her smile one more time.

When I visited Korea in 2016, Dr. Kim was in the hospital being treated for cancer, but I was able to talk with her for a brief moment over the phone. She asked me about our work here, and once again—though it should not have been—it was a big SURPRISE to me that she was thinking of CAPE even under such situations!

I did not learn about Dr. Kim's passing until very recently, about two months after her demise. I hurried to call Dr. Sue Kim, her daughter who is in Korea. Both Sue and I felt thankful for the fact that Dr. Susie Kim died peacefully in her sleep. We know God called her to lessen her pain on earth. A model after her mother, Sue spoke in such a calm and pleasant way, as if she wished to comfort me more than herself. She even said she wished to invite me to lunch when I next visit Korea. What a surprise her words and tone—she has her Mom's mind and thought. I found great comfort in her voice and manner, though I was compelled to hang up the phone mid-conversation as I could not continue our conversation when I was overcome by a burst of weeping. It is not proper etiquette to hang up the phone mid-conversation, but there was no helping it.

Faithfulness, humility and warmth! Her look—bright! Her smiles—unforgettable! Even now, I seem to hear her voice saying "Dr. Yoo!" Susie Kim, rest in peace in that place so far away from us! You are near our hearts though you are gone. May you be blessed in heaven. We are grateful to you for all you left behind!

Mr. Henry Renteria
Ms. Elizabeth Ruze

We thank all who supported CAPE and its programs in 2016. Your generous and continued support is greatly appreciated. CAPE plans to continue serving the educational and professional development needs of the people of the Asia-Pacific region. We will also continue our work towards obtaining sufficient funds to erect the planned CAPE Center on the site of the current CAPE home.
